this book conducts a gendered critique of the principle of distinction in international humanitarian law ihl with a focus on recent conflicts in africa the principle of distinction is core to ihl and regulates who can and cannot be targeted in armed conflict it states that civilians may not be targeted in attack while combatants and those civilians directly participating in hostilities can be the law defines what it means to be a combatant and a civilian and sets out what behaviour constitutes direct participation close examination of the origins of the principle reveals that ihl was based on a gendered view of conflict which envisages men as fighters and women as victims of war problematically this view often does not accord with the reality in new wars today in which women are playing increasingly active roles often forming the backbone of fighting groups and performing functions on which armed groups are highly reliant using women s participation in new wars in africa as a study this volume critically examines the principle through a gendered lens questioning the extent to which the principle serves to protect women in modern conflicts and how it fails them by doing so it questions whether the principle of distinction is suitable to effectively regulate the conduct of hostilities in new wars this book will be of much interest to students of international law gender studies african politics war and conflict studies and international relations
